

NO BLAME IN BLIMP CRASH, COURT SAYS

Hint Cabinet Quarrels Caused Carol To Renounce Throne

HEAR PRINCE WOVE PLOT TO OUST PREMIER

Rumors Galore Locate Former Rumanian Heir-apparent in Many Cities

FEAR FOR SON'S HEALTH New Youthful Crown Prince Michael, May Never Rule Over Nation

BULLETIN
London—(AP)—An official statement by the Rumanian legation Saturday says that Prince Carol's renunciation of his rights of succession to the Rumanian throne was due entirely to private reasons and not in any way on account of misunderstandings between himself and the government.

Paris—(AP)—A new love affair, a desire to return to his morganatic wife and anger over internal political affairs are variously advanced as reasons why Carol of Rumania suddenly gave up his right to ascend the throne when his father, King Ferdinand, died.

There is no confirmation of any theory, for Carol remains elusive. The presumption is that the one-time crown prince is in Milan, Italy, residing incognito at a hotel, though some reports place him elsewhere.

A Milan newspaper asserts positively that Carol has been there for a month and that he has given orders to the hotel proprietor to make ready for the arrival of another guest—"a distinguished lady."

This newspaper also is authority for the statement that on the day Carol came to Milan, a young woman of beauty registered at the hotel as "Princess Lupeasco." The prince and princess, however, are said not to have been seen often together in public. Among the Milanese it is being suggested that the princess in reality may be Mile. Zvyzsl Lombroso, the morganatic wife from whom Carol is separated. She is the daughter of a Rumanian general and has two children by Carol.

WILD RUMORS
A report originating in Serbia, says Carol desires to marry a Jewess. Other gossip is that the "distinguished lady" for whom rooms have been reserved may be Princess Helen of Greece, Carol's wife. She at present is visiting the Greek royal family in Florence.

From Vienna comes word that Carol is in Venice with a Romano-Italian woman with whom he became infatuated last summer.

In political circles it is considered more likely that the amorous aspect of the case has less to do with the renunciation of the throne by Carol than the political. It is declared that Carol for a long time has been at loggerheads with the present government of Rumania, and that the friction between himself and the ministers culminated in a big row over the airplane contract for the army in which graft is alleged to have been shown and which also involved the removal of War Minister Modaresco. Carol also is said to bear animosity against Queen Marie and Premier Bratiano because of a fear that Bratiano's direction of the government ultimately may bring disaster to Rumania.

PLANNED OVERTHROW
A report from Vienna is to the effect that Carol planned the overthrow of Bratiano and that the discovery of the plot caused him to renounce the throne.

France politicians see in Carol's action a political drive against Premier Bratiano in favor of General Averesco, leader of the opposition, for whom he desires the premiership. Averesco's military program, particularly as regards aviation, was wholeheartedly espoused by Carol. This incurred the displeasure of the king and queen.

With Princess Helen is the 4-year-old Prince Michael, son of Carol and who is destined to take his father's place as heir-apparent to the Rumanian throne. Michael is far from being a robust child, and the talk now is that if King Ferdinand should die before Michael reaches the age of 18, it will be necessary to constitute a regency under Prince Nicolas, Ferdinand's other son.

FASCIST IDEAS
Milan, Italy—(AP)—The Corriere Della Sera says Prince Carol's difference with the Rumanian cabinet regarding the military program arose from his desire to form a new party of young people, based on the same principle as Italian Fascism.

KAROLYI SEEKS COURT AID TO ENTER AMERICA

Communist Countess Says Her Exclusion by Kellogg is Illegal

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—Countess Catherine Karolyi Saturday sought the aid of the courts in her fight to gain entrance to the United States. Through her attorneys, Curtis, Peck and Baklan, of New York, she filed in the District of Columbia supreme court a petition asking that Secretary Kellogg be forced to instruct the American consul in Paris to issue her passport.

Refusal of the secretary to issue such instructions, she said, "is arbitrary, wrongful, tyrannical and capricious." She said further that the secretary had no right under "any valid law" to decline to admit her. The countess was excluded presumably on the ground that she was of communist leanings although no specific announcement was made to this effect. In her petition she said the object of her proposed visit to the United States was "to visit friends and to make a definite agreement with my agent for a lecture tour which I eventually wish to undertake."

"Your petitioner," she said, "does not belong to any of the classes excluded from entering the United States under the immigration act of 1924 or any other act now in force."

New Years International Radio Program Satisfies

New York—(AP)—The advent of 1926 found civilization more closely linked than ever before in history as powerful radio stations in London and the United States broadcast New Years greetings, news dispatches and music. The world listened and heard much of the time.

The program was described as the most ambitious and most successful ever undertaken in international radio broadcasting.

With early reports showing that music originating in New York and London was heard in Argentina, Mexico, Cuba, Canada, France, the Pacific coast and even as far as a lonely freighter off Peru, officials of the Radio Corporation of America Saturday compiled messages from distant listening posts to learn the full measure of their success.

Station 2-LO, London, heard its own program rebroadcast over the Atlantic Ocean from WGY at Schenectady, N. Y. The chimes of "Big Ben" in London, of the carillon bells of the Park-ave Baptist church in New York, radio news by the Associated Press and the voices of John McCormick and Lucrezia Bori were features of the program.

CANNOT HOLD BANK LIABLE FOR ADVICES

Supreme Court Rules Bank Is Not Responsible for Investment Counsel

Madison—(AP)—Banks are not responsible for advice given by their officials concerning speculative investments, the Wisconsin supreme court held Saturday.

The decision was handed down in the case of John F. Deswarte, who brought suit against the First National bank of Wauwatosa and Perez D. Gates, cashier of the bank for damages arising from losses incurred in investments made with the advice and counsel of the cashier. The high court held that Deswarte is entitled to a new trial as against Gates, but it dismissed the complaint against the bank.

"If banks were to be held liable for the advice of the even the unauthorized false statements of their cashiers or other agents concerning investments which from their very nature are more or less speculative, a new and very serious peril would be added to the banking business," Justice Jones wrote.

"Such a policy would tend to increase the number of bank failures, already far too frequent, and also to increase the losses to depositors and other customers of banks to the detriment of the general public."

KILLS HIMSELF BECAUSE PARENTS DENY HIM AUTO

Oconto—(AP)—Claiming he was denied the use of an automobile and that he was tired of "bumming rides all his life, 18-year-old Orville Pomp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pomp, farmers living at Little Rivers, locked himself in his bedroom in the farm home and shot and killed himself.

About noon New Years day the boy's parents, prepared to visit a neighbor. The boy was urged to accompany them but he refused. He was left at home and when the parents returned late in the afternoon they found the bedroom door locked. When forced open he was found lying on the floor in a pool of blood.

A note was found on the dining room table in which he said, "I am through living this kind of a life and I thank Calvin for helping me around all he could with his car. So long as I am not worth the use of this around here, I am not going to bum rides all my life so goodbye to all."

MOVIE CROWD OBJECTS TO PICTURES OF KAISER

Sheffield, England—(AP)—Protests by a motion picture audience here Friday night caused the withdrawal of a film depicting the life of the former kaiser of Germany at Down his retreat in Holland.

When the film started a man rose and cried: "Take it off." A French woman who lost her husband in the war supported the protest and the audience cheered as the film was stopped.

COURT DENIES ADOPTED SON SHARE OF ESTATE

Madison—(AP)—The Wisconsin supreme court Saturday decided that Leo Weber is not an adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Elliot, of Madison, and that he is not entitled to any of the Elliot estate. The court reversed a ruling of the Dane co circuit court, holding that the Weber boy was an adopted son of the Elliots.

Leo, now 12 years old, was taken from St. Vincent infant asylum in Milwaukee when he was 4 years old. A year afterward, the Elliots wrote to the asylum that they intended to adopt the boy and a petition for adoption was received by the court in evidence. First Mr. Elliot and then his wife died, the latter in October 1924, without the adoption proceedings having been completed. Their only heir was found by the court to be a relative, Jack Elliot.

NUSBAUM WOMAN FEELS REMORSE, ACCUSES LOVER

Wants Winn Hanged, Would Attend Her Murdered Husband's Funeral

Chicago, Ill.—(AP)—Mrs. Eliza Nussbaum, 58 year-old grandmother, hopes that hanging will be the fate of John Walton Winn 37 year-old former convict whose love affair with her for 15 years ended with the killing of her husband Albert.

"I hope he is hanged," she cried from the cell where she is held after confessing complicity in the plot to kill the husband.

And for the husband, whose only kind act in their 44 years of married life was to buy her ice cream once, she said, she now has tender thoughts and sympathy. She has asked permission to attend his funeral Saturday.

Meanwhile Winn, who steadfastly has denied any knowledge of the plan to dispose of "Grandpa" Nussbaum, has changed his first story, the police say. He first said he had been drinking when Nussbaum's head was battered and the body, washed and redressed, dumped out of an automobile on a southside prairie.

Winn's latest story, the police say, blames Edward Goff and Marion Strimling, under arrest, with the slaying. They wanted Nussbaum's automobile and $50,000 in property. Goff and Mrs. Martin have made statements accusing Winn of the killing, the police say.

FLOODS PERIL VILLAGES IN WEST EUROPE

Rains Incessant in England. Dykes Break in Holland. France Hard Hit

London—(AP)—Several days of incessant rainfall in England and over the whole of western Europe have caused the worst floods experienced in these sections in many years, due to the overflowing of rivers. The district suffering most heavily are Holland, Belgium, western Germany and northern France, where the Rhine, Meuse and Scheldt with their tributaries have burst their banks at several points.

Immense material damage has been wrought on the continent, where there have been some casualties by drowning. In many cities there is general dislocation of the municipal services while train services, telegraph and telephone have been extensively interrupted. Many factories are idle. Farmers in the low lying districts have had to seek higher ground. Many animals have perished.

Riverside dwellers at many places have been marooned for several days in the upper stories of their houses without food and light. At Liege alone 8,000 houses have been flooded.

200 INJURED IN BLEACHER CRASH

Two Are Killed When Grandstand Collapses During Rose Parade in Pasadena

Pasadena, Calif.—(AP)—As the colorful tournament of roses parade was moving past, a temporary privately owned grandstand collapsed Friday killing two persons and injuring more than 200 others.

Four or five of the critically injured may die. Today two complete investigations were under way. The Pasadena police department and district Attorney Asa Keyes in Los Angeles started efforts to fix the responsibility for the tragedy.

Paul Mahoney, alleged owner of the stand disappeared shortly before the crash, and has not returned home since.

The collapse of the grandstand constructed especially for the pageant occurred while the parade was in progress. Without warning, it gave way carrying down into its wreckage between 500 and 1,000 men, women and children. All means of transportation including street cars and taxicabs were pressed into service to carry the injured to hospitals.

MUCH DAMAGE

Paris—(AP)—The city of Caen, known as the intellectual capital of Normandy, is suffering severely from the overflow of the Orne river. The property damage will reach several million francs. Only one death has thus far been reported.

No trains are in operation and a number of the inhabitants of the district isolated by the water have been without food for 36 hours. In the city itself none of the restaurants are doing business.

Paris breathed easier Saturday, because the rise in the Seine Friday was below that forecast.

Northern France is hard hit. Part of Mezeres on the Meuse, is under water, while the village of Stockholm Sous-Maese-Tek, in Belgium, is submerged with life saving boats taking people off the house tops. One death of a child, is reported. The waters are continuing the rise along the entire Meuse valley. Many factories are shut down.

Says Cal Would Surely Veto Farm Subsidy Bill

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1926

Washington, D. C.—President Coolidge feels that he has cleared away all doubts and misunderstandings about his attitude toward the agricultural surplus problem and that from now on only those plans will have a chance for acceptance which do not involve the government in any price-fixing or subsidy policy.

While the president's speech at Chicago brought the whole issue to a head it was inevitable that the proponents of the McNary-Haugen plan would bring it up and force it on the attention of both houses before long. Mr. Coolidge it will be recalled, did not say anything publicly about the McNary-Haugen bill during the last session of Congress though it was pretty well understood that he opposed the measure. His emphatic opposition to this type of bill means that he would veto such a measure if it got through both houses. It is certain that no legislation like the McNary-Haugen bill could ever command a two-thirds vote for passage over a veto.

Mr. Coolidge has been loath to say in advance what he would do about pending measures but in this instance he has saved a good deal of time and diverted the whole agricultural discussion from one line of thought to another. In order to take care of the surplus problem, a plan must be devised which does not put the government in the grain exporting business to the extent of financing exports and sharing the losses.

The administration believes that some can be devised to cure the evils of the present system but prefers to have the initiative come from such farmer's institutions as the cooperative organizations. If other words when each commodity is properly organized the export problem can be handled with the approval and even the guidance of the federal government.

Had the corn farmers been better organized for instance, it is contended by administration officials, some of their present difficulties might have been averted. The conviction prevails that the first step must be intensive work by the cooperatives whereby farm products can be controlled at the source and their storage in warehouses arranged on a scientific basis. Once this is done, the cooperatives can establish their own export corporation or join an association of export concerns through which the price for export can be regulated. In no case, however, would the government take the risk of guaranteeing any prices in this export-trade.

As for financing the prevalent idea in administration quarters is that the intermediate credit bank structure affords plenty of opportunity for handling exports based upon warehouse receipts and other commercial paper properly secured.

The conference of agricultural leaders called for the middle of January will doubtless develop a plan for consideration by congress. But the death knell of legislation like the McNary-Haugen bill might as well be sounded now for Mr. Coolidge would veto anything of that sort. The farm elements must bring out an alternative plan if they hope to get legislation this session.

BARE $1,000,000 DRUG SYNDICATE

Two Agents Arrested in Chicago—Home of Leader Is Raided for Supplies

Chicago, Ill.—(AP)—New arrests here and in other cities of those involved in a drug smuggling ring which operated between Germany, Turkey and the United States did an annual business of $1,000,000 have been promised by federal agents.

Two men are under arrest here as the leaders, and the home of one, tunneled and catcombed under ground, has yielded drugs and supplies valued at several thousand dollars.

Patrick Roche, special agent, who has been working on the case since last March, when seven huge cases of drugs were shipped in from Constantinople as fish, thinks the tunnels hold most of the contents of at least four of the cases.

The shipment started in Germany and was sent to Constantinople agents in Turkey. The federal agents said the cargo was repacked in cases used for shipping fish and as fish it was sent to New York. The entire shipment was valued at $2,000,000 on the basis of its American selling price.

FIND BONES OF ANCIENT CANAL BUILDERS RACE

Phoenix, Ariz.—(AP)—The skeleton of a man, believed to have been a member of the race said to have inhabited this section 2,000 years ago was unearthed Friday, near the city limits by a party of excavators working under the direction of the American Museum of Natural History.

Measurements of the skeleton indicate the man was about 5 feet 8 inches tall. Phoenix archaeologists said the man undoubtedly was a member of the race race known as the "canal builders." They are believed to have constructed the first irrigation system in the Salt River valley, traces of which still remain.

RULES CRAFT WAS VICTIM OF TEMPESTS

Shenandoah Board of Inquiry, Absolves Personnel of Responsibility

HITS MITCHELL CHARGE Is Unable to Determine Whether Helium Cells Were Factor in Wreck

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The aircraft Shenandoah, wrecked Sept. 3, 1925, over Ohio, was a victim of the storm which encompassed her, with no blame attaching to her personnel.

The naval court of inquiry has made this report to Secretary Wilbur after exhaustive investigation into the accident which cost the lives of the dirigible's commander, Lieutenant Commander Zachary Lansdowne, and 13 other officers and members of the crew.

Final destruction of the ship, the court concluded, was due primarily to the effect of unbalanced "aerodynamic forces arising from high velocity winds and currents." It regarded the disaster as part of the price that must inevitably be paid in the development of any new and hazardous art. He urged the navy to give close consideration to recommendations for progressive development of lighter than air craft.

REMOVE BLAME

Freeing the ship's crew of any responsibility for the wreck, the court was "unable definitely to determine" whether minor damage to the hull caused by excessive pressure in the helium cells was a determining factor in the breakup of the ship. However, it thought reduction of the number of automatic gas valves from 18 to 8 was "inadvisable." Some critics held the change responsible for the ship's collapse.

The court disagreed with the contention of Mrs. Margaret Ross Lansdowne, the commander's widow that he had protested against making the flight because of weather conditions, and it disputed also various points stressed by Col. Mitchell and Captain Anton Heinen, former German dirigible pilot.

WOULD LIMIT TRIPS

Regarding exhibition flights, however, the court's opinion was that they should be limited to essential naval and military operations in so far as possible.

Concerning the commander's failure to change course when advised to do so by the aerologist aboard the ship prior to the accident, the court said that while later developments showed the change would have been advisable, it was a matter for decision by Commander Lansdowne only.

The court praised Commander Lansdowne and all other officers and men as showing an "intimate knowledge of their duties, fine discipline and morale and great courage, especially Lieutenant Commander Rosendahl and Lieutenant Mayer for their handling as a free balloon the forepart of the ship which remained in the air after the wreck.

Marriage Or Career?

Must the modern girl sacrifice one for the other?

And is it right for her to break off her engagement if her fiancé refuses to permit her to go on with her plans for a life of her own?

Now Barbara Hawley, heroine of the new serial, "Spinsters'hood" which will appear in the Appleton Post-Crescent, will offer a solution to all these questions. She is the young woman who broke off her engagement with the debonair Bruce Reynolds when he objected to her fulfilling her desire to enter newspaper work.

Barbara closed her ear to love's plea, embarking upon a career of her own. Entering newspaper work as a writer for a morning paper, she encountered many interesting experiences and persons. But, more than that, she daily fought the battle with a woman, fighting between love and ambition, must fight.

The story of her struggles interwoven with the story of her interesting experiences is a new paper woman, make one of the most interesting woman stories ever written. "Spinsters'hood" is fresh from the pen of Virginia Swain herself, a prominent newspaper woman. It is one of the greatest serials of the day.

The story begins Monday, Jan. 4 in the Post-Crescent!

JUDGE ENTITLED TO $2,000 BACK PAY, NEW RULING

Heinemann Entitled to $4,000 Salary as County Judge, Ekern Holds

As a result of a recent ruling by the attorney general, Fred V. Heinemann county judge, received more than $2,000 as back salary due him since May 19, 1924, the date he assumed office. The opinion is a direct reversal of the one given on the same matter last year.

Since he became county judge, Judge Heinemann has received a salary of $2,500 instead of $1,000, the salary voted by the county board at its November session in 1920. The late Judge John Bottenschek received the $4,000 from that date to the time of his death, as the state legislature pursuant to the resolution passed by the county board, adopted chapter 87 of the laws of 1921, increasing the salary as provided in the resolution.

When Judge Heinemann assumed the office of county judge, the attorney general held that fixing the salary of a county judge in a particular county for the balance of a term was void as violating the constitutional requirement of a uniform system of county government, and that the legal salary of the county judge was the salary last fixed by the county board under the general provisions of the statute.

This opinion was reversed by the attorney general, and resulted in Judge Heinemann receiving the difference between his legal salary and that which has been paid him since he has been in office.

REBEL THINKS PYGMIES ONCE HIGHLY CIVILIZED

Tucson, Ariz. —(AP)—Whether the pigmy of Dutch New Guinea is evolving or degenerating first must be determined before it may be classed as the "missing link," in the opinion of Albert Rebel, Tucson editor, who has seen the creature.

In commenting on the Smithsonian Institution's expedition to Dutch New Guinea, Rebel told of impressions formed when he went with a Dutch geological party to the uncharted fastnesses of Sumatra in 1918.

Pygmies may easily be called "ape men," he said, for their mode of living is not much above that of apes. Although his first contact with the Bataks of interior Sumatra almost convinced him he had found the gap in the Darwinian hypothesis, Rebel was amazed to learn the savages once had known a comparatively high state of civilization, as evidenced by remnants of art and writings in an alphabet known only to them.

Rebel's party established contact with the pygmies by signalling, but were never able to approach them. A few gifts of trinkets were left on a hillside. The next morning they were gone and jungle food was found in their place.

APPLETON CITY OFFICERS' PAY UP TO AVERAGE

Officials Here Get About as Much Salary as Paid in Average Badger City

Thirteen principal cities in the state pay their mayors higher salaries than Appleton does, and 11 pay their city clerks more, according to a survey recently completed by the Information bureau of the extension division, University of Wisconsin, in which salaries of city officials were obtained and a table giving comparisons throughout the state was prepared.

Appleton's major receives an annual salary of $1,299, while principal cities pay their chief officials as follows: Beloit, $300; Eau Claire, $3,500; Fond du Lac, $3,500; Green Bay, $4,000; Janesville, $7,500 (city manager); Kenosha, $3,500 (city manager); La Crosse, $3,400; Madison, $2,900; Manitowoc, $300; Marinette, $1,200; Racine, $1,500; Stevens Point, $1,200; Superior, $5,000; Wausau, $2,400; West Allis, $2,400; Milwaukee, $6,800; Oshkosh, $4,000.

Councilmen here are paid $240, plus 50 cents an hour for committee work. Five Wisconsin cities pay their councilmen salaries of $3,000 or more a year, but only 24 pay $200 or more. Eau Claire and Fond du Lac pay $3,000 each, Green Bay and Oshkosh $3,500 and Superior $4,500. These cities operate under commission government. Salaries for councilmen in the principal cities are as follows:

Beloit, $3 per meeting; Eau Claire, $3,000; Fond du Lac, $3,000; Green Bay, $3,500; La Crosse, $750; Madison, $300; Manitowoc, $300; Marinette, $2 per meeting; Milwaukee, $1,800; Oshkosh, $3,500; Racine, $600; Stevens Point, $10 per meeting; Superior, $4,500; West Allis, $600.

With a song by Harry Schlegel, a dance by A. C. Bosser and music by John Hantschel, members of Oney Johnston post of the American legion expect to have a mirthful time at the monthly meeting at 8 o'clock Monday evening at Elk hall. The entertainment program announced by Eric Galpin, chairman, also is to include a recitation by Henry Pettigrew and a speech on Magic Mud by Perry Brown.

There will be business as well as fun at the meeting. Reports will be made on athletic activities in which the post has a part and plans will be made.

Renewal of membership of the remaining legionnaires also is a topic which will be taken up. The total now has reached 232 for the year 1925 and more than 200 others still are expected to pay in their fees.

STATE CHURCHES IN CONFERENCE

Dr. Wilson Represented Appleton at Meeting of Congregational Ministers

Appleton was represented at the second annual convocation of Wisconsin Congregational ministers held at Beloit Dec. 28, 29, 30, and 31 by the Rev. John W. Wilson, superintendent of the eastern Wisconsin district of the Congregational church. The Rev. H. E. Peabody pastor of the First Congregational church did not attend the state conference.

Prof. Frank C. Porter of the Yale University divinity school was the principal speaker at the gathering, and gave four lectures during the four days on the general topic, "The Bearing of New Testament Studies on the question, 'What is Christianity?'" An address by Dr. Irving Maurer, president of Beloit college featured the Monday afternoon session of the convention. The meetings were held in the Beloit college buildings, and the balance of the program consisted of a number of talks by college faculty members. About 75 ministers from all parts of the state attended the conference.

Can't Pay Federal Debt With Nickles And Pennies

That there is no possibility of the negro population ever outnumbering the white population in the United States is the opinion expressed by Frederic J. Haskin, director, Appleton Post-Crescent Information Bureau, in answer to a query by a reader. He observes that according to the 1910 and 1920 census, there was at the latter date a smaller proportion of negroes in comparison to whites in the United States than in 1910, and that this fact would tend to indicate a proportionate increase in the white population.

Subsidiary silver coins are legal tender in amounts not exceeding $10, while minor coins of nickel and bronze are legal tender to the extent of 25 cents, he stated, in answer to another question as to whether there was any law regulating the amount of pennies, nickles, dimes or quarters which one would have to accept in exchange for a check, bill or gold coin.

Completion of an athletic course by girls in order to graduate from high school is usually regulated locally and not by the state, he said in reply to a letter from a 16-year-old girl. If girls are physically unable to take part in high school athletics, a doctor's request that they be excused will be all that is necessary, he wrote.

If a student desires to earn his or her way through college, Mr. Haskin advises that the pupil attend an institution in a large city, as chances of securing part-time employment is much better. It is true, he pointed out, that there are more students looking for work in a large city, but there are a greater proportion of people who have work expressly for students.

He suggested that a student can get more out of a college course if he borrows the necessary tuition from one of the several loan funds, instead of attempting to divide his time and interest between his position and his studies. There are many colleges now that maintain loan funds through which worthy students may borrow enough money to defray their expenses. The University of Wisconsin College of Engineering, maintains such a fund.

Mr. Haskin received 103 letters from readers of the Appleton Post-Crescent for the week ending Thursday, Dec. 17. If there is any subject upon which anyone desires information, write to the Post-Crescent Information bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C.

THIRD WARDERS PETITION CITY FOR FIRE UNIT

Believe West End Should Have Branch House for Protection

A new phase has entered into the city's consideration of purchase of the Langstadt-Meyer Co. building on E. Washington-st for the fire department because of the filing with E. L. Williams city clerk, of a petition asking for a fire station at the west end.

More than 300 names are attached to the communication addressed to the city council. It was signed by practically all the manufacturers and business men in the Appleton Junction area and many residents of the upper Third ward.

LOGICAL TIME NOW
Nothing is mentioned in the petition about the proposed purchase of the Langstadt-Meyer Co. building, but the move for a west end station developed when it became evident that a change was considered. The Third ward feels that the time to ask for protection is before any action is taken along other lines. The specific request to the council is for a substitution at some logical west end point, housing one fire truck of a combination hose, chemical and ladder type.

The Third and Fourth wards had fire stations for many years until the centralized department plan was put into effect. There are rumors of a renewal of agitation for a Fourth ward station but no petitions are known to be in circulation. The city purchased a lot sometime ago and was about to erect a building when trial of the central plan was advocated. The Third ward fire house was located on S. State-st and the property recently was sold. The Fourth ward house was on S. Onclida-st next to the carbarns but the city had to vacate the building when its lease ran out.

DEFEND CENTRAL PLAN

Defenders of the centralized plan and its continuance outnumber the objectors by large numbers. There were fears it would some day prove a mistake when a bridge might be open and costly delay would occur. That was in the days when the city had no Cherry and Lawest bridges. Now there are several avenues of approach to the Fourth ward and the city is working on two short cuts through the waterpower area from Lawe to Onclida-sts. When the centralized plan first was proposed test alarms were sent in from the remotest parts of the city and the department was on hand under a schedule ranging from three to five minutes. The trials were made on a Saturday when traffic was heavy. West end residents contend, however, that the city is expanding rapidly in that direction and that some of the newer property is too remote from the central station. This matter probably will be discussed by the council at its next meeting.

The Better BUICK

Starts easily

Buick motor cars are designed to run efficiently in every temperature, and under every climatic condition. Only a small percentage of the million and more Buicks have the opportunity to go to California or Florida for the winter.

Run smoothly

Buicks start quickly, even at zero. The new, high-speed starting motor accomplishes this most desirable result.

Stops safely

Buick Automatic Heat Control reduces another cold-weather starting annoyance—that of bucking, spitting, misfiring engines. The exclusive Buick feature heats the fuel supply, and saves gasoline, automatically and immediately.

and the Buick engine is full-pressure lubricated

In rain, snow or sleet Buick mechanical 4-wheel brakes stop the car firmly, in a straight line. Neither heat nor cold affects the direct mechanical action of these brakes. There is no liquid in them to expand, contract or leak away.

The Buick engine is full-pressure lubricated. Every part gets a flood of oil as soon as the engine starts, every day in the year. An emergency feed tube siphons oil to the pump, even though the cold has congealed the oil around the pump screen.

A TWO-EDGED SWORD
Considerable publicity is given to the dissatisfaction of the mid-western farmer, whose troubles thus far have not been relieved by any remedy traceable to his political friends, with the administration's farm program. It is contended that President Coolidge's visit to Chicago was a disappointment, in that his address to the farmers on that occasion failed to offer a practical method for improving their lot. How much of this alleged hostility toward the president is a fact and how much is in the minds of Mr. Coolidge's opponents we cannot say.
At any rate, what the farmers now seem to be seeking is some kind of a plan that will enable them to market their surplus production. Mr. Coolidge is not sympathetic toward the formation of a government export corporation to serve this purpose, although it is reported from Washington that some of his cabinet officers are. Notwithstanding prices have improved on most farm commodities and the prospects are favorable, there still remains the problem of disposing of surplus production.
This problem brings us to a consideration of the administration's tariff policy, which President Coolidge at all times vigorously defends. He is a strong protectionist, as most of the mid-west farmers have been all their lives. Some of them, however, are getting a new slant on this sacred institution. They are discovering that the benefits of the tariff are too one-sided: inuring almost exclusively to the manufacturer. Many of the articles the farmer buys are taxed heavily by a tariff wall purposely designed to exclude European commodities. This tariff wall is a two-edged sword. It not only lacerates the farmer by increasing his living expenses, but it operates to extinguish European markets for his products. Europe can only buy raw materials extensively from the American farmer, including his grain and meats, when it has a sufficient purchasing power. This obviously can be promoted only by permitting the European to sell his products. He cannot buy alone and do no selling. Yet it is the policy of the administration to prevent his selling in the United States, with the result that trade balances are heavily adverse in practically every European nation that is potentially a large buyer of American products.
The American farmer wants to sell his surplus products abroad, but congress has made this impossible by levying a tariff which excludes the foreigner's products. It is a jug-handled program and is exactly contrary to the farmer's interests, both in his purchasing and his sales. We have it because of the great power of the manufacturing interests in politics. It is a species of American selfishness that the farmer's perspicacity is beginning to penetrate. So long as he stands by extreme and top-heavy industrial protection, so long will he deprive himself of the European markets he now so eagerly covets for his surplus products. An export corporation to dump these surplus products into foreign markets in opposition to the laws of trade economy can at best be but a temporary measure. It can have no permanent value. If we expect to sell to Europe we must buy from her to whatever extent we may wish to encourage her purchases from us. That is perfectly self-evident. Trade between nations cannot be a one-sided affair. We have always believed that the very high tariffs of certain Republican administrations, including the present, are a mistake, that they confer no sound benefits on industry or labor, and that they are a costly tax on the consumer and a commercial and agricultural handicap. We are pursuing the identical policy of commercial exclusiveness that so good a Republican as Wm. McKinley warned us against more than 20 years ago.

KIDDING OURSELVES
As a nation, we Americans are very fond of kidding ourselves.
The process begins early in life and stays by us to the grave. It seems to be something that is native to our country, something that we draw in involuntarily as individuals and persist in blindly collectively.
It extends into every part of our life. We demand it. The public man who refuses to kid us along soon finds an early and unlamented retirement.
In other words, we have fostered certain illusions about ourselves which we will fight vigorously to preserve unimpaired.
Some of them are amusing but harmless. As for example, the hoary belief, that hasn't died, even yet, to the effect that we are the most humorous people on the globe, and that no Englishman ever can see a joke without having it diagramed for him.
Then there is the other old one which holds that we whipped England in the war of 1812. And the one about how any good American can lick three foreigners in hand-to-hand combat. And the amusing belief that the small town is always the home of virtue and that the big city chap never means right by the country maiden.
These little illusions aren't particularly damaging. They soothe us and we might as well let them ride.
But perhaps we also kid ourselves about more important things. And it might not hurt anything if we examined a few of our national traditions to see whether they will hold water.
Are we kidding ourselves, or are we telling the truth, when we say that this is a land of perfect religious freedom? (Do a little thinking before you answer.)
Are we kidding ourselves when we maintain that there are equal rights for all men in America? (Consider the numerous "third-degree" brutalities practiced by police in various cities.)
Are we kidding ourselves when we expatiate on the American fondness for free speech? (Ask the California editor who got a thousand days in jail for contempt of court.)
Is it an illusion that our national policy is always just and enlightened? (If not, why are the marines in Haiti?)
Is it true that we are a liberty-loving, broadminded people? (Dozens of censorship boards and thousands of blue laws to explain it.)
Is it true that America's intellectual level is higher than those of other nations? (We have a number of "anti-evolution" laws on our statute books.)
Are we a courteous people? (Try to drive a car or ride in a subway in a big city.)
Now the putting of these questions doesn't by any means imply that the traditions mentioned above are false.
But it doesn't hurt to examine them pretty carefully, once in a while. Complacent assurance that we are all right is not a healthy frame of mind. It's much better to stop, occasionally, and find out if we are really kidding ourselves.
Because, if we are, we can easily remedy matters. We can, if we will, make the facts fit the illusion—by keeping the illusions and changing the facts.

ABOUT THE PRESS
Once again there arises a radical up-lifter to proclaim the baseness of America's press. Not until we have papers conducted not for profit, he says, will we get the truth in our newspapers.
Perhaps he's right, but it looks otherwise. A paper that was not conducted for profit would have to be privately endowed; and such a paper, inevitably, would tend to more of a bias, on one side or the other, than any journal of today that tries to pay its own way.
Our press is far from perfect. But, day in and day out, there is little news of any real importance that is not given a fair presentation.
Better to have worked and lost than never to have worked at all.
A good mixer has a lot of friends when he has anything to mix.

A LITTLE LESSON IN ASEPSIS
I am fond of referring to the health ignorance of the average layman, the credulity of the Wisenheimer family, and the pandemic of Billings complaint which resists the best efforts of health educators.
Here is a fair sample of the misinformation which complicates the situation, taken from a high class current periodical:
A sneeze is nature's warning that a cold is on the way. But why wait for a sneeze? Start working on a cold before you get one. Junkaline used regularly in atomizer, douche or gargle strengthens the delicate, lining of your nose, mouth and throat, washes away dust and irritants which form weak spots in the tissue. The sore throat and cold germs attack these weak spots. Junkaline prevents these weak spots from forming.
Junkaline is not just an antiseptic, but it is an alkaline one—any doctor will tell you that the most effective healing agents for mucous membrane infections are alkaline.
Junkaline cleanses the irritated or congested membrane, removes excess mucus, washes away the germs and objectionable matter which the mucus contains, and its antiseptic properties make it hard for germs to multiply. Now all that probably sounds pleasing and reasonable enough to the health ignorant Wisenheimer with chronic Billings complaint. Junkaline (a pseudonym I have given the nostrum here) is about as harmless as anything of the kind can be, and in certain conditions it probably has some remedial value, that is, adds something to the comfort of the patient though, of course, it does not cure anything.
But the "explanation" of the way it works is balm of the cheapest grade. How ridiculous to suggest that the habitual application of a mildly alkaline, feebly antiseptic, prettily tinted and pleasantly flavored solution will "strengthen" the lining of nose, throat or mouth.
Granting that such a solution applied with atomizer, irrigator or gargle, does wash away particles of dust which might conceivably make microscopic wounds in the mucous membrane and so open up a way of entrance for germs, the Junkaline is applied for only a moment or two night and morning, whereas the dust is busily engaged 24 hours of the day trying to break a way in for the germs. If these minute wounds by dust particles constitute the "weak spots," the Junkaline should be applied about every 10 seconds to police the threatened district properly.
Any doctor who tells you that "the most effective healing agents are alkaline" is talking through his hat, and probably concerns of the class of the Junkaline outfit presented him with the lot. These concerns maintain special educational branches to take care of the class of doctors—that see education in such sources. The truth is that there is no scientific reason to assume and very questionable clinical or practical evidence to support the theory that the regular or habitual use of such a lotion or remedy will prevent respiratory infection. If there is any advantage in using a mild antiseptic spray, nothing superior to boric acid solution has been found for the purpose—say a teaspoonful of boric acid dissolved in a pint of boiled water.
Alkaline solutions tend to cut or dissolve the thick mucus and so aid in washing it away, when that is desirable, but except in very abnormal or diseased conditions it is scarcely advisable to try to wash away the mucus secretion of nose, mouth or throat, for it is itself an excellent natural protective, entangling germs and dust, and it usually has some natural germicidal power as well.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Gargle for Sinner
A singer who is a friend of mine was telling me of the fine effect from the use of a gargle which you suggested to prevent huskiness of the voice when singing. I should like to try it if you will be good enough to give the formula. (M. M.)
Answer.—I fear the formula might meet with disaster in publication, so if you will send with your request a stamped envelope bearing your address I will mail it to you.

Miss Blanche Ullman, Appleton, was engaged as principal soloist at the Milwaukee Trio Chamber Music concert to be given at Mozart hall in that city Jan. 7.
The newly elected officers of Outagamie-co were prepared to take office Monday morning. There were but two changes in the personnel. Louis Wurl succeeding William Wilson as sheriff and A. A. Traiser succeeding John Montgomery as county clerk.
Eugene F. Smith of the Oneida Indian reservation had entered the Wisconsin College of Physicians and Surgeons at Milwaukee. He had attended Lawrence university.
Plans were being made for the extension of an interurban line from Appleton to Kaukauna this year.
At a meeting of the mayor and aldermen last night the following were appointed as appraisers to act with those appointed by the waterworks company in determining the value of the present plant: John R. Miss Marguerite Nomahebeck entertained a company of friends at her home last night in honor of her brother, who was to return to St. Thomas college after a two weeks' vacation. Prizes at cards were awarded to Miss Emelyn Hogan and Joseph Ward.

Scientists Point Out Course Where Earthquakes May Come — New York Fears Them
BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Washington, D. C.—Not long after the recent disaster in Santa Barbara the owners of one of the great skyscrapers of New York City took out an insurance policy to indemnify them in case their building should be damaged or destroyed by earthquake. Their precaution was ridiculed in some quarters, but scientists are now saying that it was wise.
It is not suggested that the great metropolis of the country is likely to be visited by an earthquake. No one is seeking to start a "scare" that will give Gothaites prematurely white hair. However, the experts who ought to know say that the study of earthquakes points to their occurrence in definite lines or belts of weakness over the earth's surface and that some of these lines pass through or near some of the largest cities in the United States, including Boston, New York and Washington.
What is known as the east coastal line extends along the Atlantic from a point south of the mouth of Chesapeake Bay far above Newfoundland. The Pacific coast line skirts both the north and south American continents. The transcontinental line extends from southern California east to and across the Mississippi valley, with a lateral running north and south in the middle west. Still another line starts in the Arctic regions near Alaska and runs south and east through Canada to the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River.
MUST PREPARE
Millions of people live in the constant shadow of a possible earth disturbance, therefore, while the property value in these areas runs into the billions, it is for the protection of life and property that scientists call attention to the earthquake menace. They say that it is extremely important that an intensive seismological survey be made of the United States and Canada, an undertaking that has been neglected because its possible value has not been realized. They also insist that it is highly desirable that architects, engineers, and builders develop proper foundations and earthquake-proof structure for those sections that may be visited by earth tremors. Buildings of the type prevalent in most of our cities would mean an appalling disaster in case of a severe shock in any of the cities that are situated along the faults or lines of earth weakness in this country.
Seismologists who have been studying and mapping the principal volcanic zones of the earth say that what is known as the Pacific coast line of weakness on this continent extends clear around the globe. It starts in the Aleutian Islands and runs through Alaska, Canada, California, Mexico, South America, the southern polar continent, New Zealand, Tasmania, eastern Australia, and Japan, returning thence northward to the Aleutians again.
Another zone circles the Mediterranean, extending to Persia and northward to Nova Zembla and the North Pole, and is connected with the Pacific zone by a line crossing the northern part South America and running under the Atlantic ocean to Morocco. Paralleling this on the north is another belt running through the Caribbean Sea, crossing the Atlantic to England, and passing thence along the Norwe-

The Question Box
General Robert E. Lee said: "The thorough education of people is the most efficacious means of promoting the prosperity of the Nation." Those words of the distinguished Southern General are none the less true now than when he spoke them. Our Washington Information Bureau is one of the greatest agencies for the distribution of free information and educational data in the world. Its services are free to readers of this paper. All you need to do is to send in your query together with two cents in stamps for return postage. Address The Appleton-Post-Crescent Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director., Washington, D. C.
Q. Who was the first woman commissioned by a government to design a coin? W. W. T.
A. Mrs. J. E. Fraser received this commission.
Q. Who introduced long trousers in America? H. L.
A. "The Itaberdasher" says: "Trousers are comparatively young things, having come in about the same time the last century died. George III was the last English monarch who wore knee breeches as a regular thing. The change from breeches to trousers was not a sudden one, however, for there was a period of transition. During that time, men took to tight and garters, and these were the forerunners of trousers proper, that is, the straight up and down loose cut models we know to-day. We cannot say who first introduced them to America, but them, as now, our countrymen over here followed the fashions of England very closely and it is quite likely that they made their appearance simultaneously in England and in the States. Perhaps the nearest we can come to tracing the origin of trousers as we know them to-day, is founded on the fact that present styles began about the time when Disraeli held sway in England and Henry Clay was the big man of America."
Q. How many seeds are there in a pumpkin? O. D.
A. The number of seeds varies with the variety of pumpkin and one can only guess as to the number. The size of the pumpkin has very little to do with the number of seeds. Usually there are more than a thousand and less than three thousand seeds.
Q. Should iron supports be used for radio aerials? H. J. A.
A. The Loomis Radio College says that while it is generally believed that iron in the vicinity of an aerial absorbs some of the energy, iron supports are frequently employed for this purpose on account of their mechanical advantages. Observe the lattice steel towers by all the large broadcasting stations, where receivers are also installed as required by law. The aerial should be well insulated from the iron pole and swung a few feet away from it by a stout rope. The other aerials should run as nearly as possible at right angles to each other. If they are one above the other in the same direction they will rob each quite noticeably.
PADEREWSKI UNEQUAL TO BARROOM DEMANDS
From The Bridgeport Post.
Not long ago, Paderewski was a guest at a fashionable hotel in Lucerne, Switzerland. He was sitting in the bar, toying with a long-stemmed glass in which that liquor least resembling water bubbled when a man, evidently the bar superintendent, came up to him.
"Pardon me, sir, but my bar pianist has become ill. I see by the register that you are a pianist. Would you be willing to help me out?"
Paderewski pondered, then entered into the spirit of the thing and agreed to play in the bar for 60 francs.
He played for 10 minutes, when the manager came and asked him to stop, saying that the guests did not like the music and that he could not play sufficiently well.
Probably not, Paderewski was never intended to play for barroom trade.
Paderewski thought the hotel proprietor wanted a musician.
Whereas he really wanted a piano player.

New Ford Extras Will Be Shown at Auto Show

Windshield wipers, gypsy curtains, top boot and windshield wiper are being added to the items of special equipment manufactured by the Ford Motor Company. The first public display of this equipment will be during the Ford National Show Week, Jan. 9 - 16.

These specialties are not "extras" but have been so designed by Ford engineers as to become actually part of the car. Stamped with the trade mark of the company in its familiar script, the equipment has the identity of genuine Ford parts and is held to the same standard of quality as the car itself.

The introduction of these specialties conflicts in no way with the company's policy of refraining from distorting a purchaser the amount of equipment he must buy with his car. Those to whom economy is the principal consideration will in future, as in the past, be able to purchase Ford cars in which the standard equipment will include only those features essential to satisfactory operation. On the other hand, to those who are interested in the completely appointed car will be available specialties produced according to the same standards of quality which are incorporated in the car itself.

NOTED WRITER IS SUCCESSFUL IN BUILDING

London—Two careers are combined very successfully by Catherine Amy Dawson Scott, novelist of international reputation and founder and leader of the P. E. N. Club.

Besides being an author she is a successful builder. After the death of her husband, who was a war victim she built for herself a little home by the sea and it was so greatly admired she is now building homes for others.

She selects pleasant places where people would like to live. She plans homes in her own way, disregarding conventional styles and as she says, "I build them from a woman's point of view instead of a man's," as is usually done.

At present she is building a group of two-family houses she call "Two fold." She has planned them in a manner so as to save the space usually wasted in building because in these days the English have to save everything they possibly can.

Each flat has a big living room with two fires and is divided by an archway into two sections one to be used as a dining room and the other as a sitting room. It addition each apartment has four bedrooms, a bath and a kitchen.

Mrs. Dawson Scott does everything on these houses that any masculine builder or speculator could possibly do. She has even been known on occasion to take a trowel and lay bricks when professional backslaves were scarce.

The car is one of the most modern ambulances in the city, and is equipped with first aid equipment.

The Old Story Many Advisors But---

"MINE is the old story of a widow with many advisers but very few friends. I have about $16,000 to invest. Naturally I must have the maximum income I can get with safety. 'I have a little railroad stock. Would you advise my holding on to it?' Would Public Utilities be a good type of purchase for me?" This letter tells the story of thousands of widows. It is the old story of inexperience in investment and business matters and of doubt and worry over the management of an estate. How much easier it would be for a widow if her husband would leave his estate to the management of a trust company.

KAUKAUNA QUIET IN ITS NEW YEAR WELCOME

Kaukauna—According to the Chief of Police H. B. McCarthy, the New Year celebration was one of the quietest in Kaukauna. Not one arrest was made.
There were no large public celebrations in Kaukauna, but many people attended celebrations in nearby cities. There were plenty of private parties in Kaukauna and about the only sign of activities on the streets of the city after midnight was the continual coming and going of automobiles. This activity continued until far into the morning.

KIMBERLY ENACTS DAY OF OKLAHOMA "STRIPS"

Kimberly—(P)—Scenes similar to those enacted in Oklahoma when the "strip" was thrown open for settlement, have been witnessed repeatedly in different parts of the South African diamond districts within the last few months on grounds which heretofore had been considered barren.
There are thousands of persons who have become nomads, wandering about the country and engaging in every rush possible to stake out claims at the opening of diamonds diggings such took place some weeks ago at Oosonokral near Bloemhof. The race, as in Oklahoma, is made on foot, by men and women on horseback while others follow up in the rear with their "covered wagons," ground permitting, to furnish the diamond seekers with supplies.
The disappointment of the diamond diggers has been great. At most but two percent of the men make a stake, and in most cases a fortune slips through the miners' fingers through drink, gambling and dissipated living. Only 25 per cent make a decent living, 10 per cent, some kind of a living, and quite 63 per cent sink into increasing distress, said an investigating committee.

SLINKING COYOTE NOW MENACE TO MONTANA

Missoula, Mont. —(P)—The mountain lion has yielded to the slinking coyote as the greatest menace to wild life in Montana.
To save himself and his stock, the buckskin-coated pioneer of the eighties fought the lion. In modern days, the state posted a bounty of $20 for each of the animals killed.
This warfare has progressed to the stage where only one deer, a favorite prey, has been killed by the mountain king this year. The coyote, however, has claimed several victims.

DIVORCE SUIT BROKERS REAP CASH IN PARIS

Arranging of Separations Is Fast Becoming Most Lucrative Profession in France

Paris—(P)—Marriage brokerage has been almost entirely displaced by divorce brokerage as a profitable profession in Paris.
American fathers and mothers are extremely reluctant to provide the dot necessary to pay the marriage broker's fees. But wealthy husbands and wives who want their freedom are willing to pay liberally for fast action.
The brokers work on the steamers coming over from New York and haunt the fashionable hotels along the Champs Elysees and the Rue de Rivoli.
Negotiations are carried on at tea dansants and at the merry dinner dances at Ciro's and the Perroquet, which wealthy Americans frequent.
The methods are very similar to those of the American ambulance chaser. Divorce brokers make the acquaintance of all Americans on the Paris-bound boats who look unhappy. Casual references are finally made to the speed and lack of publicity with which Mrs. Gold Potts got her divorce in France the previous month.
Oh, yes, it was that wonderful lawyer, Mr. X, who turned the trick. He is so clever and has never failed to get speedy results. And he is such a gentleman and so discreet."
Mr. X may be either a Frenchman or an American. The brokers pay little attention to nationalities. Many of the brokers are divorcees themselves and supply personal testimonials as to the painless and effective methods of the attorney they are touting.
The dancing men pay attention to the married woman and try to get them to hit the divorce trail. It pays. It isn't necessary for married women to hire fixgals any more. The fixgals have all gone to work for the divorce lawyers. I think I shall apply for a job myself."
Competition has become so keen that one enterprising broker is trying to get steamship lines to announce special accommodations for divorce seekers in the third class, so more less wealthy Americans may be induced to avail themselves of the French courts.
Painless divorces now are advertised on the billboards of Paris along with painless dentistry. There are special divorce newspapers and all Americans, immediately upon their arrival in Paris, receive announcements from bureaus which offer satisfactory settlement of all marital difficulties.

VETERAN AIDED SLAVES TO FLEE IN DAYS OF '61

John E. Bastall of Soldier's Home Receives Letter of Gratitude

Waupaca—Gratitude for his aid to her mother in Civil war days is contained in a letter received from Cleveland, Ohio, by John E. Bastall, a resident of Wisconsin. The letter is from the daughter of a runaway slave woman. The writer's mother was 38 years old when she escaped from slavery by the help of the "underground railroad," and Mr. Bastall is thanked for his assistance to her and others, and for his activities along that line in Kansas in the old John Brown days.

Mr. Bastall helped slaves escape and was arrested by United States troops for that and other offenses committed in the effort to make and keep Kansas a free state. He made his adventures are told in a story now appearing in the newspapers. The woman who wrote him must have read them, he says. At the time of his capture and escape, aiding or assisting the escape of slaves was punishable with death or imprisonment for not less than ten years, under the laws passed by a bogus legislature.

Mr. Bastall enlisted in Company B Fifth Wisconsin Volunteers April 21, 1861 and served three years and six months altogether during the Civil war. He says he is more pleased to have received this colored woman's communication than to have received a congressional medal of honor.

The secretary of the Kansas Historical society, William E. Connelley, believes Mr. Bastall is the last survivor of the militant abolitionists operating from Topeka, Kans. His formal discharge from the free army, dated Sept. 29, 1866, hangs upon the walls of the society. Kansas has no record of the preteritorial military organizations.

The second of a series of three games between the Waupaca and Weyauwega city basketball teams will be staged at Weyauwega high school gymnasium Tuesday night, Jan. 5. All of the games will be played in Weyauwega, owing to the lack of a suitable basketball court in this city. The first game of the series was played at Weyauwega two weeks ago and resulted in a 27 to 26 victory for Waupaca. This series is attracting wide attention and indications point to a packed house when the teams clash in the coming battle. Pope of this city, signed a Weyauwega contract early in the season, so is playing with that team against Waupaca in the series. Madison, the Neenah flash, is playing with Waupaca, and is the scoring ace for the locals. Pautz and Tuttle, local guards, are playing consistent ball, while Abendroth and Quigley are showing up well at the forward position. A large delegation of Waupaca fans will accompany the team Tuesday night.

Waupaca co. had ten inmates who spent New Year's day in care of Sheriff Toepke. There are two liquor law violations, two alleged checks forgers, one held for contempt of court, three others on minor charges, and Arthur LaValley, sentenced to serve ten years for a statutory offense, and who has been granted a new trial by the supreme court.

In the third and final game of a series played between picked bowling teams in the city, a team headed by Carl Peterson defeated another captained by I. Cook by 178 pins on the local alleys Wednesday night. The first game, also played here, resulted in a victory for Peterson's team by seven pins. In the second game between the two, rolled on New London alleys, Cook's team won by 406 pins. Tuesday night, however, Peterson set the pace for his men by rolling 237 in the first game and averaging 207 for the three. Both these teams will be entered in the state tournament at Milwaukee in January. Peterson is so elated over the success of his five that he will pay all entry fees for his men. On Wednesday evening they rolled as follows:

Peterson team—Earl Peterson 237, 204, 181, 622, R. Pope 196, 180, 165, 541, S. Saller 168, 180, 165, 513, L. Metz 194, 181, 148, 523, P. Schneckloth 180, 182, 187, 549, totals 976, 181, 556, 2712.

Cook team—Cook 172, 179, 173, 524, C. Larson 190, 184, 150, 524, M. Larson 165, 191, 173, 529, Geo. Lindahl 157, 128, 158, 433, R. Holly 177, 160, 177, 514, totals 861, 542, 831, 2731.

Going to Milwaukee
Hugh G. Corbett, secretary of the chamber of commerce, will be among those attending a meeting of the board of directors of the Wisconsin conference of Social Work at Milwaukee on Thursday Jan. 7. Outcome of the recent better cities contest will be among the matters discussed. Mr. Corbett recently was elected a member of the board.

STAGE And SCREEN

THE GIRL WHO WOULDN'T WORK

She simply wouldn't work. Because she was engaged to her department manager she held her job but not without frequent quarrels. He was a business man. She was a stage-struck girl. Selling herself bored her.

Scene from "HIS PEOPLE" Starring RUDOLPH SCHILDKRAUT
A UNIVERSAL JEWEL PRODUCTION

AT THE ELITE THEATRE TODAY AND SUNDAY.

Then along came Gordon Kent, millionaire clubman and gentleman philanthropist. To Alice he spelled romance with a capital R. And his assistance in the drama of Alice's life was neatly timed. A later quarrel with her fiancé resulted in her quitting her job. She ran away with Kent.

The result of this rash adventure is told in one of the most gripping dramas ever filmed. The girl who wouldn't work at the New Bijou Monday Tuesday and Wednesday. There is a murder of a beautiful girl, a sensational trial, the loss of a million dollars and human interest drama to the last indelible. And such a cast—Lionel Barrymore, Marguerite De La Motte, Henry B. Walthall, Lilian Tashman, Forrest Stanley, Winter Hall and Tom Ricketts.

SCHILDKRAUT'S "HIS PEOPLE"

A tear a smile a sob a chuckle! A page from the life book of a simple Sam's, a powerful portrayal of human emotions, is the heart-stirring story of "His People" which is showing at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday.

This Universal presentation contains the lives of Rabbi Cohnsky, his wife, Rosie and their sons, Sam and Morris.

The "good boy" bookish with ambition for the judiciary; the "bad" boy unlearned a prizefighter, least different to their father's attitude toward them. Morris, the lawyer, beloved of the rabbi for his studious leanings, is cold cruel and selfish, subverting parental and racial ties to further his own mercenary ambitions.

Sammy the pugilist, who consorts with tough companions is generous, kind and imbued with love for his parents.

Climax follows climax in this moving picture. How the favored son spurns his parents and denies his religion how the younger son who was disowned by his father returns and unknown to the aged and broken man brings joy to the patriarch's last days, the sacrifice of the old rabbi for his ungrateful Morris and the eventual recognition of the wronged Sammy, all are artfully portrayed in this human document.

"LIGHTS OF OLD BROADWAY"

Marion Davies, whose latest production "Lights of Old Broadway" is a Cosmopolitan production by Monte Bell and coming to the Elite Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, is supported by a remarkable cast of screen players. Conrad Nagel has the male lead and the supporting cast includes Frank Currier, Charles McHugh, Eleanor Lawson, Matthew Pez, George K. Arthur, Julia Swaine, Gordon Willard, Hugh, Rodolphe, Billie De Vail and George Bunney.

DOUG MAC LEAN'S FIRST PARAMOUNT STAR COMEDY

He does the wrong thing at the right time everytime!

In "Seven Keys to Baldpate," the famous George M. Cohan comedy in which Douglas MacLean opens on Monday at Fischer's Appleton Theatre the comedian plays the role of a young novelist who asks the "baldpate" of a hotel in a novel in twenty-four hours. A band of crooks seek the inn at the same time. Gunplay, near-murder and general pandemonium ensue.

And through it all Doug MacLean in the character of the waiter, persistently does the opposite of the right thing at every opportunity.

Once established at the inn, he mistakes the real crooks for paid accomlices of his rival for the hand of the girl. He refuses to believe that they are shooting real bullets in their battle to secure possession of a huge sum of money which accidentally falls into his pocket. When they rush from the hotel in search of the money he merely closes the doors behind them; when they rush back into the inn in pursuit of the man who has seized the prize, he locks the door and locks them all in the hotel with him again! The climax of this inverted course of procedure occurs when one of the crooks, apparently kills the girl accomplice. MacLean rushes in, seizes the gun—and is promptly arrested for murder and forced to be the entire band of crooks!

It has a thrilling climax. On the same program will be a Puck comedy and latest News Reel.

400 AT PROGRAM TO OPEN NEW YEAR AT "Y" BUILDING

Music, Games and Demonstration of Skill Entertain Large Crowd

More than 400 men, women and children attended the annual New Year's day open house program of the Y. M. C. A. Friday afternoon in the association building. The crowd was evenly divided between the musicians in the boys' lobby and the events in the gymnasium and swimming pool. The program opened with a musical featured by a cantata. The first Christmas, by the Mt. Olive Lutheran church choir under the direction of Fred Tebe. Pupils of the Tebe violin school furnished orchestral accompaniment and the Tebe string quartet entertained the guests with a program of musical numbers for the remainder of the afternoon. Soloists were Mrs. Spangenberg, soprano; Miss Lena Jahnke, soprano; Miss Leone Hegner, alto; Miss Donna Heirmann, contralto; Harry Tretten, tenor; Herbert Kuentz, bass; Mrs. Fred Tebe, pianist.

Bowling and pool tables were kept busy in the boys' and men's department. An exhibit of foreign work of the Y. M. C. A. was placed in the lobby. The gymnasium program opened with a demonstration of a regular meeting by the Blackhawk club, followed by a demonstration on the parallel bars by the juniors for corps. The Cardinal and Sophomore Triangle club demonstrated a gymnasium class. Richard Neller, a former member of the junior leaders corps and now a member of the University of Wisconsin gymnastic team, gave an exhibition on the parallel bars and the flying rings, assisted by Robert Neller and Harold Finger as clowns. His work was one of the features of the program.

Indian club swinging by members of the Hi-Y club was next on the program and this was followed by a basketball game between the Strange Paper So. team of Menasha composed entirely of Indians, and the Riverside Fibre and Paper Co. of Appleton. The Appleton team won, 28 to 17. The Appleton Y. M. C. A. volleyball team concluded the gymnasium program by beating the Kimberly-Clark paper company team of Kimberly, three out of four games by the scores of 15-3, 15-10, 13-15 and 15-7. The Appleton team was composed of the Rev. F. C. Reuter, A. C. Romley, Alfred Bradford, H. Junge, J. Bartman and James Murray.

The swimming exhibition was divided into four parts, a diving exhibition, freck swimming stunts, demonstration of strokes and life saving. Harry Colvin, Howard Aderhold, Mark Catlin, Jr., Chester Schroeder, Robert Neller, Walter Moore, Robert Roemer and Kenneth Breitung took part in this work. Colvin, Aderhold, Schroeder and Neller were blindfolded and forced to swim the length of the pool, pick out their own shirt, trousers and shoes, put them on and race back with the bandage still on. M. Catlin completed two lengths of the pool to win the underwater swim for distance.

Breitung gave the crowd a thrill when he was tied in sack weighted with about 20 pounds of lead and hurled into the pool. He escaped and reached the surface in a short time. In a demonstration of strokes, Aderhold showed the breast stroke, Roemer the crawl and Colvin the English overarm and underarm. The feature of the afternoon was a life-saving stunt by Robert Neller and Howard Aderhold. Neller, dressed as a woman, kept the crowd in the gallery on the anxious seat by his actions in leaning over the railing and finally fell into the pool with a shriek while the onlookers cried with horror. Aderhold saved "her" and showed methods of bringing down persons to shore.

"U" EXTENSION OFFICES BEGIN OPERATING HERE

Two Members of Staff Move to City — Spring Classes Are Planned

Offices of district No. 2 of the University of Wisconsin extension division now are open for business in room 229 of the Insurance bldg. with Chester C. Allen in charge. Removal of the equipment from Oshkosh, where the office was located for many years, has been completed. Plans already are being made to conduct added classes here.

The Appleton personnel now consists of Mr. Allen, district director, Miss Gladys Sanders, secretary, and E. M. Gorrow, field representative. Mr. Allen and his family and Miss Sanders are moving to Appleton to reside. Mr. Gorrow has lived here for a number of years. The division also has one more field representative, W. H. Luesch of Oshkosh, who will continue to reside there until the end of the present school year. He has probably will be in Appleton after that time.

One of the first tasks that will be undertaken by the staff will be the organization of classes in banking, real estate, to be taught by J. James Reed of the economics department of the University of Wisconsin. He has been teaching these subjects to a large number of Milwaukee business persons for several years with success and Mr. Allen has been trying to induce him to conduct similar classes here. No sessions will be held until the second semester of the school year, however.

Prof. Reed's presence here will be determined by the amount of interest shown in the courses offered. The plan will be to hold a class late in the afternoon for one group and another in the evening for a second set. One will be a course in money and banking designed mainly for bank clerks. The other will be a real estate course for real estate men.

THE AMPICO

The charming little Quarter Grand embodying the Ampico — exactly suited to a room of modest size

The Human Touch of the Ampico

WHEN you have heard a great pianist's recording on the Ampico you have heard the man himself.

Every delicate shading of tone quality, every blending of harmonies, every bit of expression and feeling is faithfully mirrored by the Ampico.

If you love music you have only to once the sympathetic humanity of its performance. It re-enacts for you the playing of the greatest pianists—Dohnányi, Gordon, Levitzki, Lhévinne, Rachmaninoff, Rosenthal and scores of other famous artists with the very spirit of their genius in the interpretation.

The Ampico with its perfect touch can find no more fitting instrument than the Chickering, famed for a century for its artistic eloquence. For the Chickering has been the chosen piano of master musicians from the beginning—the immortal Liszt himself owned and loved a Chickering.

LES MAINS DE L'ABBÉ LISZT.

From a drawing made from life in 1876

The hands of LISZT

Sensitive hands that caressed the keys and draw from his Chickering the sobbing beauty of a nocturne. Hands of steel that commanded thundering chords of tonal splendor. The hands of Liszt—greatest of the great in the long roll of masters of the pianoforte.

For a full century the Chickering has been the chosen instrument of the great. Liszt's favorite piano was the Chickering—Gottschalk, Thalberg, Carreño, Busoni, Jenny Lind used it. The modern masters of the concert stage—Dohnányi, Dumesnil, Lhévinne, Mirovitch, Schnitzer—play only the Chickering.

And yet it is the Chickering in the home that has made this one instrument the best loved piano in America. For even in the famous Chickering quarter grand, suitable for rooms of very modest proportions, there is that quality and richness associated with the Chickering of the concert stage.

In introducing "Morning Glory" the rooster-turkey or turkey rooster of Berkeley, Calif. Because he crows at morning he tilled his neighbors who called for the anti-rooster law of their city. But when the cops came "Morning Glory" gobbled like a turkey—for being the son of a rooster and a turkey he can crow or gobble as the mood strikes him. And thus he enjoys immunity from the anti-rooster law—for who can prove he's a rooster?

KOTEX DEMAND KEEPS TWO BIG FACTORIES BUSY

Cellucotton Products Co. Products Sold in All Parts of the World

Probably no other product manufactured in the Fox River valley has gained greater world wide recognition than Kotex, a product of the Cellucotton Products Co. of Neenah. In 1920 Kotex was little more than an idea and a name, but in less than five years it has become one of the largest single specialties manufactured for women. The story of the history of Kotex is identical with that of Cellucotton.

Cellucotton was originally made during the war to relieve the cotton shortage, so that all available cotton might be released for textile and munition purposes. The specifications for Cellucotton were lightness, strength, a high degree of absorbency, surgical cleanliness and cheapness. During the year of 1918 two carloads of Cellucotton a day were being shipped to the army and the Red Cross.

Following the War a new use had to be found for Cellucotton, as the company at Neenah had built up a huge organization of trained workers, and had installed specially designed machinery and other facilities for the manufacture of its product. From a nurse who had known of the war time uses that Cellucotton had been put to, the company got the idea of manufacturing Kotex.

The growth of the sale of Kotex has been phenomenal during the five years of its existence. Only a few hundred retail stores throughout the country sold Kotex at the beginning of 1921, the first year it was manufactured, but by the end of that year there were thousands of merchandise establishments handling it. Advertising appropriations were doubled, sales volume increased by leaps and bounds, and plants and crews of trained workers seemingly doomed to idleness following the war were found to be inadequate to the needs of the Cellucotton Products Co.

In addition to the main Cellucotton plant at Neenah, a branch factory has been built at Niagara Falls, N. Y., to take care of the huge demand for Kotex. The putting of this eastern plant in operation has doubled the output of Cellucotton products in addition to giving faster shipment for merchandise in that part of the country.

PREHISTORIC FLAPPERS ALSO HID THEIR EARS

Tucson, Ariz.—(AP)—Prehistoric flappers who lived in Mexico about 10,000 years ago used the same care in concealing their ears that the fair senoritas do today.

The skulls of that period were more worried about their leg line than they were about their waist measurement.

These are two prehistoric fashion notes discovered by Dean Bryan Cummings, professor of archeology at the University of Arizona, in his excavations in the pyramid of Cuicuilco, 12 miles south of Mexico City.

The flapper of the ancient day instead of concealing their ears under the now prevalent barrage of hair used large disc-like ear plugs made of an American variety of jade. The skulls of that time corded their thighs to give themselves a handy legged effect that apparently was all the rage.

1926 Business Depends On Use Of Common Sense

Babson Park, Mass.—"At the outset of 1925, business was at a fairly high level, higher in fact than at the post-war peak in 1919,—but this elevation of course takes into account the gradual growth of the country the past five years. In the middle of 1925 business hesitated, but for the last six months has been on a marked upward swing. Reviewing 1925 statistically, in the early months of the year the Babsonchart Index of general business, as shown on the accompanying chart, stood about 100; business dropped to less than 90 in the middle of the year, and then rose to over 130 as the year came to a close. This trend of general business in 1925 was consistent in the main with the accompanying tendencies in commodity prices, the security markets, money rates, building activity, business failures, freight car loadings, employment, production, profits, and other fundamental records which I have examined.

"Business is thus entering 1926 with many favorable indications. The signs of overexpansion in business are few; the upward swing is not yet excessive and its present momentum gives promise of relatively good business through the first half of 1926. The outlook for business in the last half of 1926 seems to me to depend largely upon whether common sense will continue to prevail. If we keep our heads and do not try to expand too fast, or too far, business should remain good for the entire year. On the other hand, if improvement is foolishly pushed into inflation, there may be a proportionate reaction. Therefore, prospects for 1926 depend upon how much common sense we show in early 1926.

COMMODITY PRICE PROSPECTS
Commodity prices are likely to average somewhat higher in the first half of 1926. Throughout 1925 the prices of industrial products moved almost sidewise, our index of Industrial Raw Materials showing a high of 167 in February and a low of 161 in May with some rebound at the end of the year. This sidewise movement, seems surprising in comparison with the upward trend of business, until you recall that in spite of the great increase in business, and the brisk activity today, nearly every business is struggling against severe competition. This extreme intensity of competition has continued to prevent prices of industrial products from rising in full proportion to the expansion of general business. During 1925, productive activity has been a controlling element in the price situation; this condition should be watched carefully in 1926. I emphasize this.

"Steel, iron, coal, and nearly every other branch of industry has gradually forced production upward. It has become increasingly apparent to me, during the year just ended, that most of our industries are equipped to produce more than can be readily consumed. However, for the present, the outlook is that industrial prices should average somewhat higher for the early part of 1926.

"Prices of agricultural products have been characterized by sensational changes during the past two years. There was first a remarkable rise from a low in 1924 to a peak in February, 1925, the increase measuring about 62 per cent. This was followed by a second notable change, namely a sharp decline, measuring about 24 per cent. This drop had to be attributed to heavy production for the entire world. The carry-over, however, was limited and there is no burdensome supply of grains over-hanging world markets. The price decline seems to discount unfavorable influences, and a further marked reduction is not indicated. Analysis fails to support another year of sensational price eruptions such as occurred a year ago. Altho the usual fluctuation in agricultural products will take place, a review of all the factors suggests that the average price of agricultural products during the balance of the crop season should rule higher than the present level.

LABOR PROSPECTS
"No severe labor disturbances are in immediate prospect. The year, 1925, witnessed generally increasing industrial activity, and as the year drew to a close this resulted in a diminished supply of available labor. The ranks of the unemployed have been steadily thinned since September. This heightened employment should continue well through the first half of the year, although there is little reason to expect an excessive demand for labor and a fairly ample supply promises to be available in nearly every industry. In 1925 my records show fewer strikes than during any year since 1914. The present upward movement of general business will probably bring in its train some increase of strikes.

"The first half of 1926 will doubtless see a growing number of industrial disputes. This applies particularly to those industries in which wage agreements come up for renewal during the months of April, May and June. I do not expect, however, that many of these disputes will prove seriously disturbing to business. With the readjustment of wage agreements at the middle of the year, strikes may taper off again and decrease in number and importance during the latter half of 1926.

"The record of wage increases and wage reductions now shows a preponderance of cuts over wage increases. For comparable periods during the past three years the records run as follows: In 1923, 1432 wage increases and 24 wage cuts; in 1924, 437 increases and 217 cuts; in 1925, 290 increases and 386 cuts. The year 1925, then, closed with a somewhat downward wage trend in progress and this may last into the first half of 1926, probably coming less marked in the latter part of 1926. Observe, however, that the wage trend is a gauge of real purchasing power only when viewed in comparison with a corresponding trend in the cost of living. In spite of declining tendencies in wages, the purchasing power of labor may be fairly well sustained in 1926 provided living costs remain at a reasonable level.

INDUSTRIAL PROSPECTS
"Industrial activity generally is on the increase. When seasonal movements are disregarded, and attention is focused on the underlying trend, many industries had an upward swing in 1925, and are entering 1926 with considerable momentum. Among such industries the following might be mentioned, together with their associated lines: Iron and steel, automobiles, railroad equipment, some branches of the textile industries, and various electrical lines. There should be a more even distribution of industrial activity in 1926 than we have had for some time.

SALES AND TERRITORY PROSPECTS
"In most territories, sales should continue to improve. Starting with the low point of the 1921 depression, the manufacturing centers were the first to recover from the slump, and rise to normal. In 1922, 1923 and 1924 the farm regions were notoriously lagging behind the rest of the country in sales opportunities. During 1925 this dislocation of the farming regions was largely corrected and there is now fairly good balance between the manufacturing cities and the agricultural areas. With general business now swinging up through its normal line and pointing toward prosperity it is a most interesting question whether or not the manufacturing cities will take the lead in the advance into prosperity, just as they took the lead in rallying from depression.

"During 1925 more attention has been directed to the advantages of the South than ever before. Florida has been the scene of extraordinary activity; but in a broader sense, people have wakened up to the immense possibilities throughout the whole South-east and Southwest. One thing in particular I desire to emphasize, namely, the remarkable growth of the South. At the risk of repetition, I again urge readers to watch the wonderful developments that is sure to continue throughout the Southern States. Of course, Texas is now suffering from recent weather conditions, but I want to go on record as saying that Texas will, one of these days, have a remarkable growth, especially along the Gulf. As to Florida, my opinion on this state is well known. Owing, however, to the harmful and unequalled for congestion of enterprises of all sorts and descriptions, that are now pushing into Florida, the true growth of this state is seriously affected. Such congestion is bound to result in a temporary reaction.

"While we welcome new opportunities in the South and elsewhere, it is well to keep in mind the various localities whose development has been in progress for so many years. For example, the Pacific Coast has registered a distinct improvement during 1925. All through the North Atlantic Lake, and Middle West States you can find localities which show notable progress. These and various other regions enter 1926 under favorable auspices.

INVESTMENT PROSPECTS
"In the face of an unprecedented volume of new offerings, the BOND MARKET in 1925 reached its highest level since early 1917, while bonds reached their top in May, fluctuations in the corporation group since that time have been very limited, and current prices are very close to the best of the year, or since the opening months of 1917. Newcomers in the investment field unfortunately tend to over-emphasize the importance of the average level of the bond market over this 1917-1925 period. As a matter of fact, a long range indicates that war and post-war levels were wholly abnormal and that bonds at present are relatively low, rather than high, when compared with a ten or fifteen-year average.

"Thus the position of the conservative investor who is holding for security and yield, the true investment factors, is satisfactory. Money rates have stiffened a little and some slight additional advance seems probable. The better business situation tends to draw funds from investment to business channels with a resulting transfer to commercial accounts of certain funds which banks have in securities at the moment. As an immediate, rather than a long range outlook, the influence of a rising commodity market, with the resulting lower purchasing power of the dollar, would temporarily act as a check on bonds.

"It is our expectation, therefore, in the few months to come, that the bond market as a whole will do little more than follow a sidewise movement with tendency toward moderate sagging. Its general position, nevertheless, is so sound that I cannot believe it advisable for the investing public to sell bonds now. Rather, I believe the advisable course is to continue with well secured issues, recog-

PEOTTER READY TO SERVE MOTOR CAR AT ANY HOUR

Towing Service Boon to Motorist Stalled on Deserted Country Road

What can be more dreary than to be stalled with a car on some far off country road late at night or in the wee small hours of the morning? If one has occasion to be motoring at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning he will have practically the whole road to himself, and if something goes wrong, and the engine stubbornly refuses to function it would seem as though the unfortunate motorist is out of luck, as there are no other cars passing to give him a tow to town.

Especially, the predicament of the stranded motorist is not nearly so serious as all this, especially if he is stalled near Appleton. Although most of the local garages close up at midnight or shortly after that time, the ill fated traveler need only go to the nearest phone, and call number 82, which is the Carl H. Peotter Towing service at 621 W. College-ave, and he soon will be rolling homeward.

The Peotter Towing service serves all the garages in town, or garages in neighboring cities by towing cars to any garage or repair shop at which the owner desires to have his car fixed up. There is always someone at the Peotter shop during the 24 hours of the day and night, and an S. O. S. call at any time will meet with a quick response.

In addition to towing stalled cars the Peotter service specializes in mechanical road service, such as repairing engine trouble in cars which have balked out on the road, or in taking gasline out to cars which have gone dry out on a country road with no gasoline pump in sight.

The Peotter Towing service also does a great deal of work in repairing wrecked cars. Cars which have been in severe smashups and which look like fit subjects for the junk yards when they are towed in have been repaired at the Peotter shop. Badly bent frames and axles are straightened out so that they look none the worse for wear after having come out of the Peotter shop.

nizing, satisfactory yield now received and long range outlook for a later return to the upward trend so much in evidence since 1920.

"The Stock Market in 1925 has had a most wonderful advance and the averages of prices reached levels somewhat above those recorded in previous upward swings. This fact itself is not conclusive. It has added significance when compared with the progress of fundamental conditions. A review of 1925 and a scrutiny of the prospects for 1926 strongly suggest the desirability of now keeping a good portion of your funds liquid. This does not mean that certain securities may not advance further. The point to remember is, that general business has now advanced well into a period of prosperity. Experience teaches the wisdom of getting a large amount of funds into liquid form at such a time.

SUMMARY
"The prospects for 1926 are optimistic. True, we have certain speculative features in stocks and real estate, together with the problems of installment purchasing, which are disconcerting. Among the danger spots are European complications and Congressional delays. However, there seems to be a generally concerted and co-operative plan among the best people of the leading countries to get each nation on a business basis. COMMODITY PRICES, both of industrial and agricultural products, should hold firm. No severe LABOR disturbances should occur and the tendency will be for lower rather than increased wages. As far as INDUSTRY is concerned the first part of 1926 looks like a forward movement. Whether or not such lines as copper and sugar—so susceptible to oversupply—can go forward at the same rate as the others, is a fair question; but one by one certain lagging groups are showing themselves able to do a good and profitable business. The steel industry is a recent example of this. SALES should continue to improve in spite of severe competition. Many Stocks are too high, while others are not high enough. BONDS should remain on a fairly even keel. MONEY should also become gradually firmer, but should not dangerously strengthen unless we go into real inflation. Money is largely the key to the situation.

"In analyzing the 1925 prospects, however, it will be a grave mistake to think only of stocks, bonds, commodities, and the other material factors which I have been discussing. Bank clearings, car loadings, and all these other statistics are not the real foundation of prosperity. Prosperity rests rather upon integrity, fortitude, loyalty, industry, common sense, and the other great human attributes. These have been the underlying causes of the improvement during 1925. These same forces—or lack of them—will continue to shape business, not only in the new year but in the new quarter-century that begins with 1926."

NIGHT WATCHERS

"What do you suppose has happened?" cried Daddy Cracknuts in surprise, when Nick opened the gasoline tank in the squirrel gentleman's car and found that the gasoline was all gone.

"I just had it filled up last night and I haven't run ten yards since. I got two whole pints and paid fifteen cents for it."

"Somebody must have stolen it," said Mister Bunny with a wise nod of his head. "It happens that way sometimes."

"Yes, it does," spoke up Grubby Woodchuck quickly. "I had some stolen one time."

"So did I," said Prickles Possum. "I remember the time that—"

But Daddy Cracknuts interrupted: "I suppose it must have happened, but it is very mysterious. I got the gasoline last night before I went to bed, and I took the car right into my garage and locked the door after me. Then I hung the key on the nail behind the stove in the kitchen."

"Maybe the thief climbed in through the window," said Grubby Woodchuck.

"No, he couldn't do that," said Daddy thoughtfully.

"Why not?" asked Grubby.

"Because there is no window," said Daddy with a twinkle in his eye. "I built my garage that way on purpose."

"Maybe someone climbed in the kitchen window and got the key," said Prickles Possum.

"Maybe he did," laughed Daddy. "But we know it wasn't you, Prickles, because you would leave some of your spikes behind and that would give you away."

Prickles sighed. "Yes, it's awfully hard," he said. "I can't even get a spoonful of jam without Polly knowing it. It's worse than having thumbprints, so it is."

"Well, all this talking isn't going to get your gasoline back," said Nick. "What are we going to do about it?"

"I'll have to get some more, that's all," said Daddy, good naturedly. "Here's another fifteen cents. Nick, give me two pins. That will take me to the Post Office and back and leave enough for tomorrow."

"What are you going to do tomorrow?" asked Ringtail Coon, who didn't have a long, sharp nose for nothing. It was always poking into other people's affairs.

"We're going over to get my wife's mother to bring her to our house for a visit," said Daddy. "The school will all be in Heller Skoller's school soon and the house will be so quiet, we want someone around to sort of be company. We're having a regular house-cleaning. For old Mrs. Gray Tail is very particular and she gets into all the corners when she comes."

"Is that why you like to stay out doors?" laughed Ringtail Coon. "I don't blame you. I can't bear house-cleaning, either."

"I tell you what we'll do, Daddy," said Mister Bunny just then. "Maybe the thief will come back tonight to steal some more of your gasoline. Some of us will take turns sitting up to watch."

"Well, I declare!" said Daddy. "That's very kind. I'm sure. It would be a very good idea and I'll let you know about it after supper. I'll have to be going to the Post Office now to see if there is a postal from my wife's mother. Good-bye, everybody." And away he went.

The whole thing worked out splendidly. Ruth, with one or two hitches which were smoothed out with little trouble. Jack played up to me beautifully. I never knew he was such a good actor before. Every little while I get a view of an entirely new Jack—a man I do not know at all.

He doesn't seem to have the capability of bringing out any playfulness in me. I am always serious when I am with him. Perhaps if I had played more with him he would be happier with me.

I remember a woman friend of mine who was much older than I when I was first married. "Don't ever let your husband come to regard you as he looks upon the oatmeal and cream and egg that he eats as a matter of course because it is filling and he can't eat it in a hurry before catching the car."

Rather make him understand you can be and usually are the champagne and sweetbread and truffles that are served at dinner when the work is done and he settles himself down for a good time."

I presume I am the three-minute egg and oatmeal that Jack consumes every morning, and he has come to think I am quite as monotonous. In the future I will try and be gayer. Come over and help me to do it.

Ruth, you are a much gayer woman than I, and I am sure that Walter loves you for it.

Mr. Sartoris sent his wife to the house, and Jack pretended to be grumpy because it had not been sent to the office. I, suspecting nothing, explained, and was a most ready quarrel with him because he would not accept my explanation.

Finally he clinched matters by saying that none of our friends would come on such short notice, and ended by making me a wager, which would amount to several hundred dollars, that the people I invited would not accept.

Of course they did accept, and said they would be delighted to come. When Sed turned up on the afternoon of the dinner, Jack and I took him to the Treadmill Theatre, while I was all unsuspecting that everything had been planned by the three men beforehand.

After dinner Mr. Sartoris asked me where would be the best place to go and dance, and I suggested a new place which had just been opened. As soon as we were seated, he asked me to tango with him, and while we were out on the floor he began to tell me about his early life, and how his mother had betrayed his father, and his wife, himself.

He had not finished the story when the music stopped and we stepped through the door to a balcony. I became so interested I guess we did stay out there under the moonlight sky a little longer than conventionality would approve. We were just about to go in, and I had impulsively extended my hands in sympathy, and they were warmly clasped in his, when I heard someone say: "Leslie, do you not think we should better be going home."

ALABAMA BEATS COASTMEN, 20-19

Three Touchdowns in Third Period Give Desperate Southern Champs One-point Victory

BY GEORGE SHAFFER Pasadena, Calif.—The Crimson Tide of Alabama trickled over the rock wall of Washington's Huskies in the annual intersectional gridiron battle of the Tournament of Roses festival here Friday.

Fifty thousand persons saw the Dixie boys uncover a spectacular passing offense in the third period and snatch a 20 to 19 victory over the Purple Tornado by cramming all their scoring into this period. The difference between victory and defeat or a tie lay in the low of a guard, Bill Buckler, who converted two of Alabama's tries for point after touchdown, while Washington missed all but one of its goal kicks.

Washington ran up a lead of 12 to 0 in the first half, due mainly to the prowess of big George Wilson, who seemed to gain through Alabama almost at will. Patton scored through the line four minutes after the first quarter began, and the Huskies repeated with another touchdown on a forward pass from Wilson to Cole, an end, early in the second period.

Wilson, bruised and his head spinning from his battering efforts on every play, wobbled to the sidelines late in the second quarter, and Alabama made its great effort with Washington's All-American out of the lineup. The barelegged red shirted Alabamians began their great effort when Louis Tesreau, Wilson's replacement at half back, made a poor punt which went to the crimson on Washington's forty yard line in the third quarter. The rest of this quarter, like the first 100 ballots of the last Democratic national convention, was a unanimous ballot for Alabama. About 235 spectators were injured and one was killed in a collapse of a grandstand at the field.

Dave's Dots And Dashes

Mindful of the fact that the Grimses Brothers is the only team to whom they have lost this season, the Kimberly-Clarks of Kimberly, have arranged a return game with the Irish, to be played at Kimberly. The Clarks are leading the Eastern Wisconsin basketball wheel with five wins and no losses. Next week the Grimses five journeys to Milwaukee to play five games there, one of the teams being the strong Seaman Body five.

Here's a little comment from the Manitowoc paper:

Was the Appleton league team ten points better than Manitowoc's team Wednesday night? Does the score of this game and that of the Two Rivers-Appleton tilt denote in any way the comparative strength of the two teams?

Those are just a few questions that pop up when trying to compare two teams by relative scores. It is sure that Appleton will cut a big figure in the States league before the season is over and judging from general comment, the Appleton five has just found its feet. Rather late in getting started, but then it is rumored that Ronne wasn't built in a day. The next Two Rivers-Appleton game ought to be one well worth seeing.

HOME BARBERS ON GAIN. SAY MAIL ORDER HOUSES

Chicago—(AP)—Barbering at home appears to be on the increase in the United States. The desire of women to be better kept is being met by the sale of their neckties, which is being largely responsible for it. Three of the largest mail order houses report an increase of from 50 per cent in the sale of hair clippers during the last year and a half.

Not only does hobbled hair style demand close neck, trims and shaves but mothers and fathers have taken to clipping the hair of their children. There has been no hair clipper sold, however, that the little shaver will ever be supplied in the mail order houses.

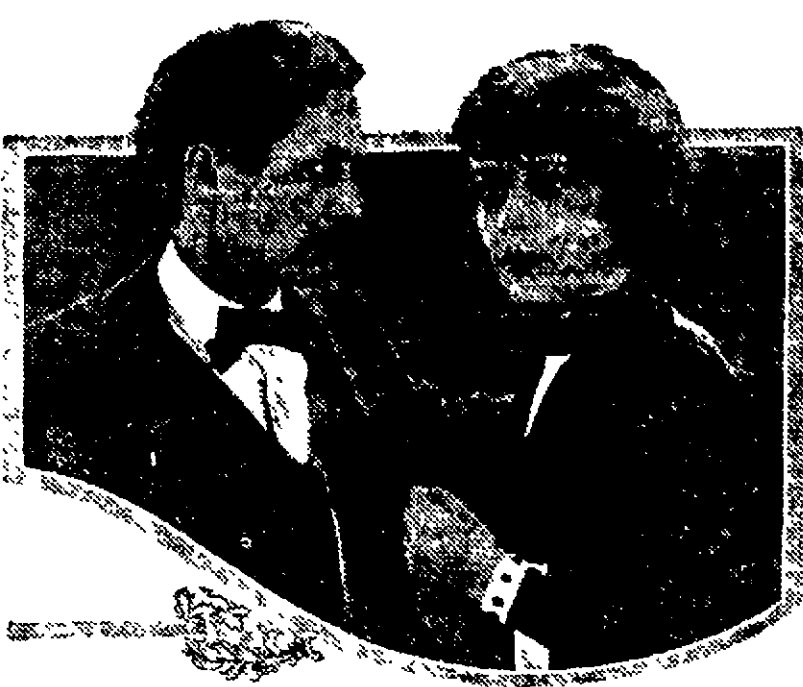

TOLSTOY TO BE GIVEN SOVIET RECOGNITION

Tula (AP) Soviet Russia will recognize the attainments of Leo Tolstoy, the famous novelist and social reformer, with the issue of a commemorative stamp on the occasion of the celebration of the 100th anniversary of his birth, Jan. 28, 1910. The stamp will be made in Moscow and will be made a permanent office.

All the buildings at Yasna Polyana, Tolstoy's home and birth place, near here, will be repaired and the village made over into something of a national shrine and educational center. Already a Tolstoy museum has been established here, a home for Tolstoy's daughter, Alexandra.

BUS COMPANY OPENS ROAD TO MILWAUKEE

After a suspension of service for almost a week motor bus companies operating between Fond du Lac and Milwaukee via highway 15 were expected to resume operations either Friday or Saturday afternoon and vice from Fond du Lac stated. Bus service was halted last Saturday when the highway was snowbound in many places.

The Wisconsin Motor Bus Lines which operates between the two cities has had a crew of men working on the highway since last Sunday. By Thursday the crew had cleaned the road from Milwaukee to a point six miles south of Fond du Lac. A huge snow plow is opening the roadway. As soon as highway 15 is opened the plow will be moved to highway 55.

ADVANCE SKILLED TRADES FOR HOME HAPPINESS

Kansas City—(AP)—Working on the theory that when a discouraged man returns home after a day's employment for which he is not fitted, his depression engulfs the household, Kansas City schools are popularizing the skilled trades.

"We are instilling in the minds of the children a proper appreciation and emulation of skilled workman ship," said Superintendent I. I. Cammack. "We are showing the pupils the desirability of engaging in the trades and at the same time, giving them an opportunity in vocational work to discover the trades for which they are best equipped."

RAYON FABRIC AHEAD OF SILK IN U. S. SALES

Silk Worm Is Losing Ground to Science and Machinery of Modern Paper Mills

New York—(AP)—The silk worm after losing its secret, is giving way to the competition of man's science and machinery. Rayon, an artificial textile fabric closely resembling silk in appearance is used in the manufacture of hosiery which consumes one-fifth of the domestic production, and of ribbon, cotton and woolen goods. Its tensile strength is greater than cotton and less than silk.

Count Hilaire de Chardonnet was the first to produce rayon and he called it artificial silk when he introduced the fabric at the Paris exposition in 1889. His invention resulted from a study of the organic process which takes place as the silk worm produces silk.

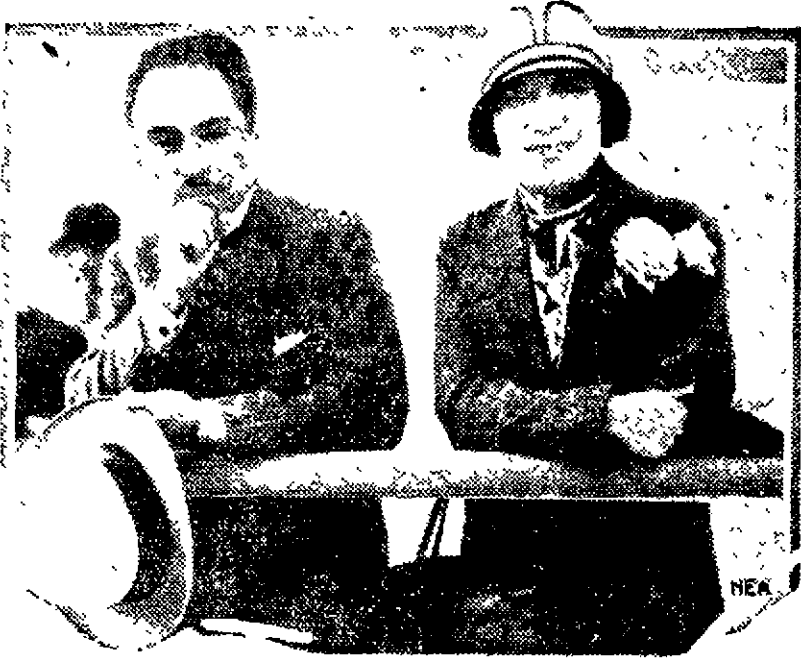

Imitating this artificially he produced a vegetable fibre which organically resembled cotton more than silk. Improvements were made in the process until cellulose, the material constituting the cell walls of plants, could be manufactured into rayon on a large scale.

Many processes are used, but in all some type of cellulose is reduced to a jelly-like mass and pumped through glass nozzles in which there are fine capillary tubes so small as to be invisible to the naked eye. This produces endless threads which are pumped into chemical baths to harden and bleach them. From this stage the fibres are spun and handled like silk.

The silk like sheen which rayon imparts to cotton fabric when woven into it within the past few months has resulted in a large demand from the cotton mills of the south and has greatly stimulated the sale of cotton goods throughout the country.

Rayon also is used for covering telephone wires and electromagnets, trimming and beading tire fabrics, for doll's hair, artificial flowers, shoe

HOLIDAY VACATION OF SCHOOLS END MONDAY

Doors of Appleton's public schools and Lawrence college will swing open once more on Monday to greet returning students after two weeks off duty. The annual Christmas vacation which started Dec. 18 will be over and the students will buckle down to work for six months. Students of the public schools will be compelled to settle down in a great hurry as the end of the first semester with its reviews and examinations is not far in the future.

laces, suspenders, garter linings and in knit goods.

In a statement issued by the Babson Statistical organization it was estimated that the domestic production of rayon was approximately 38,000,000 pounds in 1924, as compared with 8,000,000 pounds in 1920 and 2,450,000 in 1914.

CARRIERS COUNT MAIL FOR RURAL PATRONS

Every piece of mail which is delivered on rural routes during the first 15 days this month will be counted by the rural mail carriers. The count was started Saturday morning.

This is a semi-annual procedure, the other count taking place the first 15 days in July. It is done in accordance with orders from the federal department, and is desired both for statistical reports and to show the volume of mail which is being handled at postoffices in the country.

Counting the mail intended for delivery on rural routes was started with the establishment of the rural delivery system more than 25 years ago. All such mail was counted daily for the first five years, since which time the count has been conducted quarterly and then semi-annually.
